

*For just $30 a year,
we'll let you in on a secret.*

The Illinois Business Journal was designed to fill a niche in the metropolitan St. Louis market, and it does it very well -- providing news and an in-depth look at issues of particular interest and concern to businesses in Southwestern Illinois. As a monthly publication, it delves into news stories from an Illinois perspective, providing information and insights that the Missouri-side media does not.

We understand that not everyone will read everything in every issue but our goal is that everyone will find something in every issue that they will want to read. We believe that you will find that to be true.
